

TO IGNORE PROTEST OF NEWSPAPER MEN

CORRESPONDENTS GAIN NOTHING BY THEIR ACTION.

President McKinley Upholds Gen. Otis—Said to Have the Utmost Confidence in the Ability of the Commander in the Philippines—Cabinet Meeting.

Washington, July 19.—The president is not disposed to take any action on the protest of the Manila newspaper correspondents, and is inclined to let the matter rest where it is. At the cabinet meeting Tuesday only four secretaries were present—Messrs. Hay, Long, Hitchcock and Smith. An effort was made to create the impression that the protest had not been under consideration, but it is learned that it came up in an informal manner. It can be confidently stated that the "round robin" was fully discussed, and that several of the cabinet officers favored summary punishment for the correspondents. The president's desire to nullify the effects of the correspondents' action and to stop the agitation will guide them, and they are expected to minimize the importance of the disclosures.

Gen. Otis is in a more embarrassing position. His orders have been disobeyed, and he must either punish the correspondents for their willful act or become the laughing stock of the world. He is in command where a state of war exists, and it is a great offense under such circumstances to do anything that tends to humiliate him. It is expected, however, that the president will advise conciliatory action, and it is not considered probable that he will resort to harsh measures.

The president has the utmost confidence in Gen. Otis. He has relied implicitly upon him for advice concerning the situation in the Philippines, and has accepted his recommendations. It was only at the urgent solicitation of other advisers that he consented to interpret Gen. Otis' estimate of the troops necessary to mean that he desired an effective fighting force of 30,000 men. Recent reports which have reached the president, in connection with the correspondents' protest, may have enlightened him concerning the Philippine conditions and may have suggested the advisability of superseding Gen. Otis. No expressions along this line can be obtained from any one in authority, and those best informed will not admit that the president is considering a change. There is considerable gossip, nevertheless, and it is widely rumored that Gens. Miles, Merritt and Brooke are under consideration in this connection.

While the president is for conciliatory measures and desires the discussion ended, it is believed by many that the people will insist that the protest be investigated, and that the administration will be forced to consider the advisability of removing Gen. Otis. This is the position taken by some of the principal republicans of the east.

AFFAIRS ARE QUIET IN MANILA.

State Department Gives Out Some of Its Late Information.

Washington, July 19.—The following statement was given out Tuesday at the state department:

"The state department has received from the Philippine commission an important dispatch conveying these facts: "By the co-operation of the military and the commission municipal governments have been established in seven important towns in the province of Manila and Cavite. These are working admirably, and one good effect of them is that considerable numbers of the insurgents are constantly deserting and coming in, some of them with arms. The system will soon be extended to other towns, which are asking for it. Continued success in this direction will mean the beginning of the end."

"The commissioners state that the general situation is as described in the message of Gen. Otis June 26, except that a number of ports in the southern part of Luzon, in Leyte and other islands to the south have since been opened to trade. Dispatches from Dr. Schurman on his return from his trip through the southern part of the archipelago were of the same purport. A disposition to accept American sovereignty and to welcome our troops was everywhere manifested. "Gen. Otis speaks of the general desire of the volunteers to re-enlist. He has provided for the enlistment of the two regiments which have been authorized, and has asked permission to organize a third regiment."

AUTHORITIES LOOK FOR PEACE.

Official Messages from Manila Considered Reassuring.

Washington, July 19.—Secretary Hay confirmed the announcement of the receipt of important cablegrams from the Philippine commission and Maj. Gen. Otis giving ultra optimistic views respecting the Philippine situation. As a result of consideration given the matter at the cabinet meeting, Secretary Hay was empowered to make public an extract from the report of Maj. Gen. Otis, descriptive of the exact condition of affairs. On the highest authority it may be stated that further information received from Col. Denby and Gen. Otis, which was not made public, is to the effect that overtures in the direction of peace have been made by prominent Filipinos, and at least one cabinet officer interpreted the dispatches to mean that Aguinaldo and some of his subordinates are concerned in the negotiations.

The authorities are disinclined to discuss these negotiations, because, in the first place, they are not very sanguine that they will be attended with satisfactory results, and, in the second, it is not desired to acquaint the opposition to the Americans in the Philippine ranks with the combinations passing between their leader and the Americans, because of the danger that the display might accomplish an interruption.

Call Otis a Bungler.

San Francisco, Cal., July 19.—Interviews with soldiers of the Oregon regiment, recently returned from the Philippines, after many months of active service in the field, show an almost unanimous sentiment in the rank and file that Gen. Otis has bungled the campaign and is incompetent to command.

Troops Anxious to Return.

Fargo, N. D., July 19.—A letter from Capt. George Auld, company K, North Dakota volunteers, dated Manila, May 22, says: "There is not 1 per cent of the volunteers who wish to remain. From our standpoint the war for which we volunteered is over."

The kissing bug has found a victim here. Mr. Sternberg was stung about two weeks ago. The insect did not seem particular about finding his lips but bit the first spot it alighted on. This was the back of his head. The sting was sharp and painful, and the wound at once began to inflame and swell up. Finally he saw Dr. Pechman, who examined the swelling and pronounced it a bad carbuncle. He says, however, that the sting was the initial cause of the carbuncle.

CARTER H. HARRISON SENDS AN APOLOGY

EXPLAINS HIS FAILURE TO COME HERE.

Mixture of Dates Responsible and the Request Is Made That the Facts Be Given in Order That All May Understand the Facts in the Case.

Carter H. Harrison has written a letter apologizing for his failure to keep his engagement to attend the Janesville race meeting. The letter was written under date of yesterday and is directed to the secretary of the cycling club. It is as follows:

Chicago, July 18, 1899—Stanley D. Tallman, Esq.—Wisconsin Division L. A. W., Janesville, Wis.—Dear Sir:—Through some inadvertence I gained the impression that the Janesville meeting of the Wisconsin Division of the L. A. W. was to be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of the present week. Had it not been for this impression it would never have occurred to accept the invitation, as I had made all my arrangements to spend last week at Huron Mountain with my family, and the present week in Chicago, my return to Chicago being due to the fact that the democratic national committee meet here on the 20th. Supposing, as I did, that your meeting would be about the same time, I figured on being able to run up to Janesville on Wednesday, returning later in the evening so as to keep my engagements with a number of prominent democrats who are to be here in attendance at the national committee meeting. To my surprise on my return to the city Monday morning I discovered your meet had been held last week, and that no word had been sent from my office explaining my absence. This is rather a late date to be presenting apologies, but I trust you will mention to as many of your organization as possible this excuse, and let them understand that it was through inadvertence and not discourtesy that I failed to be present to keep my engagement. Yours truly, CARTER H. HARRISON.

STREET CAR MEN OUT ON STRIKE

Three Lines Tied Up This Morning.

MAY SPREAD STILL FURTHER—OTHER LINES EFFECTED.

The Order to Strike Came Suddenly and Was the Result of An Appeal From Master Workman Pines, Who Is Leading the Brooklyn Men—Every Policeman in the City Ready For Duty—Crowd Holds Up and Wrecks a Car, Resulting in Four Arrests—Dynamite Used.

New York, July 19.—[Special]—The strike of the street car employees has spread to Manhattan and three lines were tied up this morning. Many other lines are affected and the strike may spread still further.

The order to strike came suddenly and was the result of an appeal from Master Workman Pines, who is leading the Brooklyn strike.

Chief Devery was apprised of the situation and at an early hour this morning every policeman in the city was warned and was ready for duty.

The first act of violence was committed at seven o'clock, when a crowd held up and wrecked a car, resulting in four arrests.

In Brooklyn the strikers are steadily losing ground. Dynamiting the Brooklyn Elevated structure created a tremendous sensation. The miscreants are still unknown.

Shortly before noon traffic was resumed on all the lines, but not on regular schedule.

The Brooklyn elevated road is running trains as usual today with the exception of the branch on which the explosion occurred.

New York, July 19.—[Special]—The strike situation this afternoon is more serious. Many of the crews have abandoned the cars on the streets, causing no end of trouble.

The strike at Manhattan appears to have a stiffening effect on the Brooklyn strikers, and they now declare that they will hold out until the end.

Twenty-one men charged with complicity in dynamiting the cars on the elevated railroad have been arrested.

New York, July 19.—An explosion at an early hour this morning blew the foundation from under one of the Fifth avenue elevated line pillars. That road is blocked, but other "L" lines are running. As a serious riot occurred on Fifth avenue earlier in the evening the police authorities fear that the explosion is the work of the strikers.

Fifty reserves have been marched into the Fifty-first street police station in this city.

It is reported that Chief Devery has telephoned Sergeant Justice to hold the men at the station in anticipation of a strike on the Metropolitan lines.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit company ran 850 cars and had 2,600 men at work on them Tuesday, according to President Rossiter. Cars were run on the principal lines today for the first time since the strike was ordered on Sunday.

There was less violence on the third day of the strike, the most serious riot being at Fifth avenue and Sixth street, where policemen used their revolvers. Master Workman Pines says the strikers have lost no ground, and that 4,500 men are out.

The elevated engineers and firemen will not strike.

Bitter attacks were made upon the Metropolitan company at Cooper Union mass meeting, and sympathy for the Brooklyn strikers was expressed.

The railroad longshoremen at the piers have struck for higher wages.

Probably the most serious disturbance Tuesday was when policemen had to use their revolvers to subdue a mob that attacked car No. 2208 on the Fifth avenue line at Sixth street. Motorman Richard E. Latham of 1515 Fifth Fourth street had his arm broken, and was so badly beaten he had to be sent to the Methodist hospital. Conductor James E. Mulcahy and Policeman Burns were also hurt.

The mass-meeting at Cooper Union at night was called by the discontented employees of the Metropolitan Traction company in New York to protest against the way they were treated. A great crowd cheered for the Brooklyn strikers, and Mayor Van Wyck and Richard Croker were hissed.

Before the meeting ended General Master Workman John N. Parsons, who presided, said that municipal ownership of all street railroads was one of the objects of calling the meeting.

The board of aldermen of Greater New York unanimously adopted a resolution of sympathy for the strikers and requested corporation counsel and district attorneys to take action to compel railroad companies to live up to the ten-hour law.

Cleveland Men Are Peaceful.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 19.—The strikers are pursuing different tactics from those followed in the former strike. They are not interfering with the non-union men who are operating cars, nor will they tell what their plans are.

The firemen of the company decided to join the strikers. They are thirty in number. An effort, it is said, will be made to bring out the power-house employees.

For mothers nursing their children and for general debility from any cause, I regard it as of especial value, as it combines both tonic and nutrient properties, which make it truly the 'Best' Tonic."

"I recently prescribed Pabst Malt Extract. The 'Best' Tonic, to three of my patients, all of whom were ladies, and all of whom were suffering from dyspepsia and its consequences, and in all these cases it acted like a charm. Two of them bought more of the tonic, and continued to take it, until now they tell me they can eat anything, and one of them added 'everything' without the slightest inconvenience. They have certainly improved wonderfully in weight and strength. I have prescribed your 'Best' Tonic a great number of times. It is one of the best, if not the very best, of its kind."

The catbird has an eye for color, and if there is a piece of red flannel lying around anywhere they can get at you will see them pounce upon it with an eagerness that is comical. No matter how big the piece is, if they can manage it at all they will double it and twist it until they get it into such a shape that they can fly away with it to line a pretty nest for the baby catbirds.

A Rare Find.

A rare find in the shape of a moa's egg has been made in a mining district in Central Otago. There was a fall of earth in a dredging claim, and presently the huge egg was seen floating uninjured in the water. The discovery is the more interesting from the fact that this is the second perfect moa's egg that has ever been found. The only other perfect specimen was unearthed by a map while digging in the alluvial soil at the Kaikoura mountains in the early sixties. This egg, which was nine inches in length and seven inches in breadth, was taken to England and sold for 100 guineas. Some idea of the size of these eggs may be gleaned from the fact that a man's hat makes an excellent egg-cup for them.

Gambling in England.

In the latest history of gambling in England, just published, there are some astonishing revelations as to the amount of money won and lost by men and women whose names were as familiar as household words early in the present century. There are records of $200,000 having been lost at a sitting, and the loss of $30,000 appears to have been a very common occurrence.

ADDS HIS EVIDENCE.

Story is the Same as From Other Sources.

Lots of Money Spent But No Returns Have Been Received.

The people in Janesville willingly add their evidence to that which has already been given, in favor of Morrow's Kid-ne-oids, the best remedy that has ever been sold in this city for backache, kidney and urinary disorders, sleeplessness and nervousness. Our druggists report wonderful cures and state that Kid-ne-oids are daily increasing in the opinion of our people. Kid-ne-oids act directly upon the kidneys and nerves and restore them to their natural condition. Good kidneys make good blood, good blood makes good kidneys and strong nerves.

Mr. O. B. Conrad, wholesale dealer in leaf tobacco, 38 South Main street, says: "For some time past, as a result of disordered kidneys and uric acid poisoning, I suffered from pain across the small of my back, rheumatism and spells of nervousness. Morrow's Kid-ne-oids soon conquered the backache and rheumatism and quieted and strengthened my nerves. I will advise all who suffer from kidney complaint to use Kid-ne-oids."

Morrow's Kid-ne-oids are not pills, but yellow tablets, and sell at fifty cents a box by all druggists and by The People's Drug Co.

Mailed on receipt of price. Manufactured by John Morrow & Co., chemists, Springfield, Ohio.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

1824—Augustine Iturbide, ex-emperor of Mexico, was executed; born 1783. Iturbide began his career as a most valiant and loyal soldier in the armies of the king of Spain and helped put down numerous insurrections by a rigorous hand. Finally he conceived a plan of independence and did not stop until the yoke of Spain was cast off forever.
1845—Great fire in New York city; loss, $10,000,000.
1887—Dorothea Lynde Dix, eminent philanthropist, died in Trenton; born in Worcester, Mass., 1805.
1858—Rev. Edward Taylor Kent, the popular American novelist, died at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson; born 1837.
1890—General Joshua K. Siegfried, a Federal veteran, died at Pottsville; born 1832.

WE WANT HONEST NEWS

The Gazette wants reliable news only. The correspondent of the press association from which The Gazette gets its telegraphic news, signed the protest against the censorship at Manila. We have every confidence in the correspondent and recognize the fact that he is an honest, conscientious, and thoroughly capable newspaper man. Yet we do not feel that his dispatches are materially damaged by the censor. We doubt very much if General Otis is more liable to lie, than the correspondent is liable to err. We want the truth only, and we want to feel sure that the dispatches sent us are not of the yellow variety. Therefore we do not object to the censorship. Two heads are better than one. Mr. Keene, of the Scripps-McRae Press Association, is a newspaper expert. The official censor at Manila is a military expert. Hence the dispatches published by The Gazette can be relied upon as being accurate both from the standpoint of the newspaper man, and of the expert in military service.

Washington dispatches say that General Otis' reports are fully corroborated by all the other Philippine army officers. We cannot see, therefore, that the censorship works any real hardship on "the boys," although it may compel them to stick a little closer to the conventional than they will naturally desire—especially when they are so far away from home.

As far as The Gazette is concerned, General Otis, you need not worry about the censorship. This paper has no complaint to make. It has had excellent service and reliable news, and that is exactly what it wants. We know our Mr. Keene would never give us anything else, but Heavens! think what the other correspondents would do if the bars were taken down!

The excellence of The Gazette's telegraphic service was again demonstrated Monday when the Gazette published the famous newspaper correspondents' protest against censorship at Manila, several hours ahead of the outside papers. The protest did not appear in any of the "first editions" of the Milwaukee and Chicago papers, but readers of The Gazette had the whole story at 4:30 o'clock. The correspondent of the Scripps-McRae Press Association, which furnishes The Gazette's telegraphic news, was one of the signers of the document. The association keeps staff correspondents at all the principal news centers and the service is, as we think The Gazette's readers will admit, the very best.

Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, refuses to speak at Altgeld's free silver meeting to be held in that city Thursday evening, although W. J. Bryan will be present. This is said to mean that if Bryan sees fit to train with the Altgeldites the Harrisonites will fall upon his neck and smite him as heavily as may be. The Illinois democrats are giving a continuous entertainment these days, and the show bids fair to last until Harrison and Altgeld are both sidetracked.

William Lloyd Garrison, who advises the American negroes to "rise up and aid the Filipinos," had better keep away from the Southern States. If he gets careless in this respect a few patriotic negroes may think it expedient to aid both the Filipinos and Uncle Sam by bringing William Lloyd, a Manila rope, and a tall palmetto tree into an effective combination.

James Creelman, the notorious but not celebrated war correspondent, says General Otis is a "fussy old man." General Otis never won a more handsome compliment, for anyone who tells the truth is always "fussy" in Creelman's estimation. P. S.—But no one, so far as we know, ever applied that description to Creelman.

Constant Reader—Please do not annoy us with your questions. If you do not wish to take your bicycle suit to a lawyer or a tailor, place it in the hands of Captain Wallace, P. X. Kotschreigne of the detective bureau, and he will see that it is pressed.

The peace conference has reached the point where the "general ground is taken that intentions which tend to make war more deadly really promote peace by increasing the risk of war."
Eureka! Let the good work go on!

Milwaukee Journal: A Milwaukee man has been found who is walking to St. Louis to look for work; the chances are that if he could not find work here he will hunt the union in vain.

Madison Journal: Janesville's bicycle meet failed, but that city should not be discouraged. To watch a perspiring hump back pump a wheel round a race track is an incident rather than the whole of life.

The dum-dum bullet is all right, after all. The peace conference refused to discontinue their use, the missiles being defended by the English and American delegates.

The American peace conference delegates, being expansionists, could not well oppose the use of the dum dum bullet—which is also an expansionist.

The Milwaukee breweries are fairly swamped with orders. This boom, also, to quote The Milwaukee Journal, seems to "have substance to it."

The glue trust's plans are still brewing but there are no indications that the scheme will "go to pot."

Appleton bootblacks have formed a trust, and "shines" now cost ten cents each.

NEATH THE SHADOW OF DEATH

Sally Ann Pope,
Mrs. Sally Ann Pope, widow of the late Virgil Pope, closed her eyes to awake no more in the material world, at her home in the town of Janesville yesterday afternoon at the age of seventy-three years. Her demise was partially due to an accident several days ago. She fell and fractured her hip, resulting in partial paralysis, causing her untold pain. Death came to her relief yesterday afternoon, between three and four o'clock.

Miss Sally Ann Humes was born in Alleghany county, New York, and was a daughter of Amos and Susan (Veeland) Holmes, who were also natives of the Empire state. Her father spent a portion of his life as farmer, but the greater part was spent in hunting. He made a trip to Wisconsin in 1836, in 1837 and again in 1838 and settled permanently in the state in 1842, locating in Janesville township where he bought and improved a farm. Miss Humes was married to Virgil Pope on January 9th, 1845, in Rock county. After his marriage he took his young wife to the home he had made on section 14, town of Janesville, where he resided until the time of his death nine years ago. Four children were born to them, all of whom are still living. Isabelle V., the eldest, is the widow of E. N. Shaw, and resides on the homestead, and has been caring for her mother during her declining years; Arvilla V. is an inmate of the county asylum, where she has been for many years; Della M., wife of Fred W. Holden, of this city, and Anson T. Pope, who resides on the homestead.

Mr. Pope was one of the pioneer residents of the county, coming here in the year 1835. His remains were interred near the Flaggler school house in the town of Janesville.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Pope will be held at the home in the town of Janesville Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Arthur C. Kempton, pastor of the Baptist church, will officiate.

DRUGGISTS OF THE STATE ARE COMING

FOUR DAYS OF WORK AND AMUSEMENT.

Wisconsin Pill Compounders to Meet in Janesville August 8, 9, 10 and 11—Final Arrangements Were Made Yesterday—A Record Breaker and Surprise.

At a meeting of the Janesville druggists, yesterday, final arrangements were made for the meeting of the druggists of the state in this city next month, and all things promise a surprise to Janesville people.

The meeting opens on the morning of August 8, at Odd Fellows' hall. Two sessions will be held, at which business will be transacted.

Tuesday evening the drug traveling men, of whom some eighty will be present, form a procession at the Grand hotel and parade to the hall. This parade is worth seeing, for they have a band of their own, and are all dressed in marching costume. At the hall they give an entertainment to the visiting druggists.

On Wednesday, two sessions are held and prominent druggists from not only Wisconsin, but Illinois and Minnesota, will be present and address this meeting.

Games at Court House Park.

Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock all adjourn to the court house park where a series of games for prizes, consisting of wheelbarrow, bicycle and running races will take place. Wednesday evening the ladies of the auxiliary society give a dancing party to the druggists. Between each dance is some game, such as talking and whistling matches for the ladies and sewing contests for the men. Smith's tail orchestra will furnish the music. Both parties, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, are private and for the city and visiting druggists only.

Excursion Up River

Thursday morning one session will be held. At 1 p. m., all the druggists meet at the Grand Hotel and march to the steamboat dock, escorted by the Imperial and Travelers bands, and go up the river to the picnic grounds. Both steamers have been engaged and quite a number have tendered the use of their private launches. The afternoon will see some of the most comical games ever held in Janesville and all participated in by the druggists. Some five hundred dollars are up for prizes, all donated by the druggists.

Thursday evening the freedom of the city is given, when the druggists meet at the Grand Hotel in every conceivable costume, masked, etc., and escorted by the band and travelers bands, they visit and inspect every drug store in the city. This parade will equal anything ever seen in Janesville, in the comical line. After the parade they adjourn to the Odd Fellows' hall where the prizes of the week are given out.

Excursion For the Ladies

Wednesday morning the visiting ladies will be given a boat ride up the river. For the Thursday afternoon games up the river, tickets will be sold to those who wish to see the games, at fifty cents each, and citizens who wish an afternoon of fun should go with the party. Thursday morning the visiting ladies will be given a drive around the city, and citizens are requested to send their carriages to the Grand Hotel at 9:30. If our people will do this, it will add to the enjoyment and give our visitors a chance to see the city. Any lady who has a horse and buggy can give an hour of her time in taking one lady with her.

Committees to Have Charge

The committees to have charge of the affair are as follows:

INSPECTED STONE CRUSHERS

Local Aldermen Return From Kankakee, Ill.

Aldermen H. S. Gilkey, Walter S. Rice, J. B. McLean and W. G. Palmer returned yesterday from Kankakee, where they have been inspecting the work of different stone crushers, with a view to selecting one for use in the new quarry to be opened up by the city. The one they decided on will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000, and is one of the best made. They will report tonight at a special meeting of the council, when some action will be taken in regard to the matter.

NORTHWESTERN ROAD MAKE IMPROVEMENTS

ROUND HOUSE IS BEING ENLARGED SOMEWHAT.

Insufficient Room Since the Advent of the Large Engines—Many Changes Made in the Office and Other Departments—The Idea of Removal Dismissed.

From time to time wild rumors have run about to the effect that the C. & N. W. R. y. company would remove their shops from this city. If there are any left who believe this to be true, all they will need to be convinced of the falsity of it is a trip to the round house at the present time, where they may find wonderful changes and improvements being made; and which should set at rest all doubts in regard to the matter.

Since the advent of the large engines or "hogs", as they are termed, the round house has been found too short to accommodate them and it was found necessary some months ago to move the south wall back six feet. This was done for a space capable of accommodating six engines. Now the occasion demands new changes and a force of laborers are engaged in lengthening five different "stalls" making eleven in all, each with a total length of sixty-three feet. This part of the work will be completed by Saturday night.

Other Improvements Made.

The office accommodations have also become inadequate, and plans have been drawn for extensive improvements in this department, which will be carried out at once. The building will be raised one story, and what is now the office will be used for oil, waste and store-rooms. The oil tanks will be placed beneath the floor, and the oil raised to the surface by air pressure.

The entire upper story of the new building will be devoted to offices and a sort of club room for the engineers and firemen. The room will be provided with books, periodicals, etc., in order that the men may have a place to read and study when off duty. It will also contain charts, showing by means of different colors, the various pressures of air by which the brakes are operated and sectional breaks of engines, etc., showing in detail the entire construction. Entrance to both rooms will be made from the street level on the Jefferson street side instead of being obliged to go down to the tracks as heretofore. Sixty individual lockers have been provided, where the men may leave their clothing and other articles secure from the dirt.

Pneumatic Cinder Hoist

Another important improvement will be a pneumatic cinder hoist designed by Foreman Wm. H. Whalen, and which by the way does him a great deal of credit as an inventor. By its use the old method of raking out the "fire box" shoveling the cinders from the pit up onto the ground, and then shoveling them onto the cars will be done away with. Instead, the cinders will be raked into a specially constructed pan placed in the pit and by a manipulation of air valves, will be hoisted out and deposited on the flat cars with one operation.

Up at the depot the grounds are assuming the appearance of those at many of the Chicago suburbs, being beautified by the addition of numerous foliage plants and vines. George Klehm, a florist of Arlington Heights, is doing the work.

HE RECEIVED VERY SAD NEWS

Ed Anderson Called From Here to Rockford—Brother Drowned.

Ed. Anderson, of Rockford, who has been in the city the past few days with a view to locating here, received a telegram announcing the sad tidings that his brother, Theodore, was drowned yesterday at Finchford, Iowa. Mr. Anderson had started with a party on a trip through Iowa and the west and had gotten as far as the above named place when the accident occurred. Mr. Anderson returned at once to Rockford and left there today for Iowa to bring back the body.

YESTERDAY an excursion from Rockford to Whitefish Bay over the C. & N. W. railroad carried 5,000 people in six trains. The grocer's picnic to the same point tomorrow promises to take a great many people from here. Three trains have already been provided so there will be no crowded cars. Tickets $1.25 round trip.

GOLFERS AT PARTY TALK OF MEDALS

COMPETITION FOR TWO PRIZES TO BEGIN SOON.

New Supper Plan Borrowed From the Kenosha Club Where It Has Proved Very Successful—Horse Lawn Mower to Be Bought If Means Can Be Secured.

Sixty golfers enjoyed a picnic supper on the broad porch of the club house last evening. All the surroundings were ideal. A beautiful sunset was succeeded by soft moonlight that half hid and half revealed the surrounding hills.

The carryalls arriving after supper brought many young people and the dancing floor was comfortably filled until 11 o'clock.

The next formal club event will be the cotillion August 1. A proposition has been made that instead of a basket supper being served that night a committee of ladies order the supper and serve all who come at 25 cents a plate. This plan has been followed in Kenosha this summer and is pronounced much more successful than the basket picnic plan. The fee, though small, is enough to meet expenses, and hire help for washing dishes, etc. Much annoyance and bother is saved and a more satisfactory supper is provided. The Memorial day, Fourth of July and tournament-day suppers have been very attractive features in Kenosha and have done much to strengthen the club.

Another Kenosha idea that may be adopted concerns family memberships. Such memberships give the privilege of the grounds to the member, his wife and all children under eighteen. The purpose is to extend the golfing spirit to the younger generation.

A horse lawn mower is to be bought by the Golf club if means can be provided. The cost will be about $80 and the rapid growth of grass this year makes the mower a very necessary appliance. A subscription paper has been started and half of the money guaranteed.

The mower should have been at work three weeks ago as the grass is too long to make good play possible. As soon as the course is put in shape the ladies' competition for the Valentine trophy will begin and the men will be lined up for the handsome silver trophy presented by Mayor Victor P. Richardson. This last will be a handicap match and there is every probability that a dark horse will be the winner.

Get your tickets for the Grocers' excursion at DeForest's tonight and avoid the rush in the morning.

By CUTHBERT HYNE.

(CONCLUDED.)

sea shrubs, like a thin white eel, and I followed that easily enough.

It led me to the Corinth, where she lay with her decks straight up and down, and I saw it passing away through the watery blackness down her companion hatch. There seemed something wrong here. Where were all the great moving banks of slime the divers had told us about? Where was the filthy ooze which slid back against the steeper as fast as they dug it away? Slime there was in plenty. I sank in it knee deep in spite of the buoyancy of the suit, but it was quite manageable, and the Corinth's companion lay far above its mark. A rope lay against the upright deck beside the white air tube. I thought a minute and then laid hold and swarmed up. Inside all was dark, but I switched on light in the electric lamp I had with me, and the glow lit the place like a foggy street.

The first step landed me on something that crunched. I looked down and saw it was a suit of bones, skinned clean by the fishes. Some poor wretch had been drowned here when the steamer foundered. Well, of course, I had seen a skeleton before, but somehow or other those bones didn't seem to cheer me. There was something wrong. The yarn the divers had brought up and the real thing as it lay were two entirely different matters. It occurred to me that I had stumbled (by the accident of Storey's paralysis) upon something intended to be hid, and I was quite man enough to know that trouble might very possibly follow.

I stopped where I was and thought. I'd a big mind to go back then and report what I had seen. I felt I should be earning my pay by doing that. But at the same time I liked Cameron; he was a fellow countryman and more besides, and I didn't want to report him as acting off the square, so I stouped under my heart and went on down below.

The white trail of the air tube led me down the stair to the lowest berth deck, then along the alleyway right aft, and then into the cabin, with a batch in the floor. Sitting on the lid of the hatch was Cameron, who turned around when my light fell upon him. He beckoned me with an impatient gesture and slipped down into the blackness below. It was clear he did not recognize me. He took it for granted that I was Storey, delayed by some accident. For a moment I staid outside irresolute, and a shoal of small fish, attracted by the light, brushed past my legs. I remembered that they had been browsing on corpses and were prospecting me as food, and the idea made me shudder inside my rubber clothes. Then I thought good to see exactly what was going to happen and slipped through the hatch after Cameron.

We were in Corinth's strong room. The gold was beneath and around us, in iron bound boxes, built together like the bricks of a wall. Cameron lifted an end of one of the boxes and nodded his helmeted head toward me impatiently. I took hold, and together we swung it up through the water and out through the hatches. Then he scrambled up himself, and I followed. Again we lifted the box, treading with care along the slimy alleyways so as not to foul our air pipes. I could feel the hopes of the dead shift beneath my feet, and my chest was tight with labor. In spite of the buoyancy of the water, the box of gold was as much as the pair of us could struggle along with.

At last, with infinite trouble, we came out through the companion hatch and lowered the box with a rope down to the bed of slime below. We followed it, lifting it between us again and wallowed on with it through the mass of slime. The herbage of the sea betrayed our shoulders as we struggled on. The skeletons of the dead stood sentinel along our path, and the golden silence of the water crashed into my spirit. We held our way right round the steamer's bows, and there, against her keel, we came upon a pit. It had been dug through the slime with infinite labor and shored up with planking. With a rope we lowered the gold chest down into the pit and Cameron followed. I switched on my lamp and saw him heaving and thrusting it down a gallery which led far beneath the iron sheathing of the wreck. A shovel lay against a sea shrub at the lip of the pit. I took it in my hand. I was away from the world of air in this lonely world of water. Cameron and I were the only human occupants, with none to overlook us, and I felt that I ought to be on my guard against him. From his point of view it was clear I knew too much.

Presently he returned from out of the pit and was about to go back again round the bows of the steamer, but I touched him with my shovel and he turned. Then I pointed to the front glass of my helmet, and he came up close and peered at my face, and as quickly recoiled. Then again he came toward me—this time with clinched fists—but I menaced him with the up-lifted shovel and he kept his distance. How I longed for speech then to say to him what I wished!

For a full minute we stared at one another and then with a sudden gesture he picked a fragment of stone from the ground and wrote a message on the rusted plating of the wreck.

"Hold your tongue, Mac," I read, "and you shall share."

"I wrote a laborious reply with the peak of the shovel: 'Cannot deal with you. Am bound to employers.'"

He scribbled "£25,000" and watched my face.

I shook my head inside the helmet.

He wrote "£30,000" and looked at me again.

I wrote "Not for £270,000." I saw he was ready to spring upon me and held the shovel edge above my shoulder handy to cut him down.

He considered for a minute and then wrote: "If you blow on me you will kill her. She knows. She never liked the idea, but I persuaded her into it. We wanted to marry, we wanted to be rich. There was no other way. She is half dead with anxiety. You must have seen that."

I nodded. He wrote on:

"Then consider her, Mac, and make your own fortune at the same time."

I could not stand any more of this. I have been poor enough all my life, and God knows, I ken the value of siller. If it had not been that Captain Boyd treated me in the way he did, and looked in my eye when he gave me the job, I'll not say what might have happened. It takes a strong man to resist the bigger kind of temptations, and—I'm no over-lusty. I beckoned to the water surface above with my shovel and took a step forward. With his arm he implored me to pause.

"Are you going to report what you have seen?" he wrote.

I shrugged my shoulders.

"I give you fair warning," he wrote on the rusted iron, "that if you do I will kill you first and then myself. So you will not find it cheap to ruin me."

I nodded my head to show I understood and beckoned him to go on.

He lifted his hands—I thought he was going to grapple with me, and I slashed at him with the shovel. He drew back and, once on the move, I drove him before me furiously. He might be desperate, but I was savage enough myself. The thought of all that wealth lying within touch made me grit my teeth in cruel rage. If only the skipper had not said what he did!

We plowed our way across the slimy sea floor to where the boats lay at moorings, and first Cameron went up, and then I followed. On the row back to the Gleaner we said nothing, either of us, and for long enough we did not find opportunity of being alone. But that night, when most of the hands were turned in, he and I sat out together on the bridge deck, and he talked while I looked out at the stars where they hung above the black ridges of the island.

He told me the whole tale of what he and Storey intended to do. They could not go far from the wreck, as the air bubbles, rising to the surface, would advise their movements, so they had to set to work and make a hiding place for their plunder close at hand. They decided to dig out a chamber beneath the steamer, and infinite labor it cost them. Meanwhile, to mask what they were doing, they gave out the tale of the ooze covering the treasure out of reach. Their efforts were nearly ended when Storey got his stroke. The pit was made, part of the gold was already transported, and, when the rest was hid, then they intended to cover the mouth of the pit so that it never could be found by chance explorers. Then they were going to tell Captain Boyd that the job beat them and get his permission to blow into the Corinth's strong room with dynamite from the outside. The explosion would be so contrived that the steamer would be rived to pieces and the ooze would cover all her fragments.

"You think that the Gleaner would return home then?" I asked.

"There would be nothing else for it."

"But the company would send out another expedition."

"Let them send out ten; they'd find nothing."

"And afterward?"

"Storey and I were going to charter a schooner, put diving tackle on board and come out here again by ourselves. We could weigh the gold in a couple of days, and I know of a market."

"Well, Storey will never use limbs or tongue again."

"I'm sure of it, Mac. You must take his place. We two and one other can work the schooner, and a year from now we'll be rich men. Think of it, lad—rich beyond what you ever thought of! Think of it—no more having to stand your watch at sea, no more sea at all! You can stay in England and marry and live a decent life. Think of it, Mac!"

I was thinking of it. As I sat there watching the heat lightning wink among the black hills of the island I was remembering that it was a chance such as I had never had before in all my life, and one which would never come to me again. I'd been kicked about the world ever since I first went a wee bit wrong in Ballindrochater, and I'd sworn never to see the place more till I'd enough siller to build a house there as big as the manse itself. I hungered for the old spot again, with its gray houses and the brown moorland at the back. My mother was still there and poor. I could do a power of good in the place

(the deil told me then) if I went back rich and enlightened with all my store of foreign travel. But then what the captain had said to me came back—how he reminded me I had been born a gentleman, and how he'd treat me as my father's son and trust to my honor—and I stood to my feet and swore.

"Look here," I said to him. "I give you your choice—those boxes are to be taken back from the pit and stowed back inside the Corinth tomorrow; then we'll announce that we've dug away the mud, and can get at the strong room, and next day we'll warp the Gleaner across, rig a whip and let her hoist them on board one by one with her own winch. If you'll do this, I'll work with you so long as my arms will move; if you refuse, I'll go to the old man now and tell him what I know."

"It may be a dangerous deal for you yet," he said grimly.

"Ah, there," said I, "I've insured myself. I've thought that if an accident happened to me below the water yonder you might forget to be honest. So I've written out an account of what I know and sealed it, and if I don't turn up the envelope will be opened."

"You've pinned me?" he said.

"I think so."

He stared at me queerly for a minute, and then he spoke again. "Do you know, Mac," said he, "I'm not so sorry for it as you might think. I was led into this precious scheme by some one else. But I'm not going to blame anybody now that can't be here to speak for himself, and, besides, I'll freely admit that I was keen enough upon the chance when it was put in my way; it seemed so safe, and it was such a thumping big plan to go for. I guess we've most of us kept honest through fear of being found out."

"And, besides, things are not always as safe as they look."

"You're right, Mac, and I'll remember that for the future, and I guess it'll scare me into keeping straight."

"You're not a very healthy way of looking at it," said I.

"I'll admit that," said he, "but from society's point of view it's a very useful one. We're funny animals. I feel far easier now than I did an hour ago, and I know some one else who'll be easier too."

"That will be Miss Bradbury you're speaking of?"

"Maybe so, maybe no," said he.

"The person I have in mind writes books and has a great liking for romance and told me almost as soon as we met that it was a pity the old days were gone, when there were pirates and all that sort of stuff, and sea life was more exciting. We got intimate, that writer and I, Mac, and the tale of this game here with the gold boxes slipped out. I claimed there was every bit as much romance in that as there was in the old time buccaneering."

"And she agreed to let you go on with it just because she loved you," said I, "and then at her heart out with fear lest you should get dropped upon. Man, you need not go further with the yarn. It's been plain to the eyes of every one that's watched the lassie about the decks that she was just fretting herself to a shadow about something."

"It's made me nearly cry to see her."

"Well, man," said I, "it's over now, and she can begin to put on flesh again so soon as ever you choose to tell her the new plan. If I mistake not, you're the fatter of a dress in the companion way this minute. I'll be away forward and turn in. Maybe you'll have business here you'd rather talk of out of my hearing."

And a minute later I heard the hum of their voices and guessed Cameron was getting rid of his new version of the tale. So that was the way the gold boxes from the Corinth found their way into the Gleaner's hold, but I fancy Captain Boyd must have thought all along that there was something going on which was not quite according to rule. Still, how he found it out I can't say. Storey couldn't have told him, since the man never found speech again; it was certain that neither Cameron nor Miss Bradbury would have let it out, and most assuredly I did not.

But after we got to Liverpool and all hands from the Gleaner turned out to see our diver married to his girl the old man pulled me aside as we left the church and crumpled a couple of £20 Bank of England notes into my hands, and, "Those," said he, "are from the salvage company. I told them I thought they were owing you a matter of £270,000, but I couldn't get more for you, Mac, my lad, and perhaps you are better without it. Companies are not addicted to giving away tips when they aren't forced, and third engineers, Mac—well, they have thirsts, haven't they, my lad?"

Well, I suppose he was right. I know I had clean pockets a week later.

NEW POTATOES.

How to Treat the Summer Potato.
Parisian Practices.

The summer potato requires entirely different treatment from the winter tuber, which has grown stale and strong from long storage. There are now many delicious ways in which this vegetable may be cooked which are not desirable methods later when the potatoes are no longer fresh, says the New York Tribune.

One reason why new potatoes are so much better than old ones is because they are not peeled and the starchy coating on the outside, as well as the saline salts of the vegetable, are thus preserved. It is a mistake to peel a potato before it is boiled. Keep a stiff little vegetable scrubbing brush on hand. Put the potatoes in cold water and scrub them clean with the brush. In summer throw potatoes with their jackets on into boiling water and peel them as soon as they are boiled and serve them.

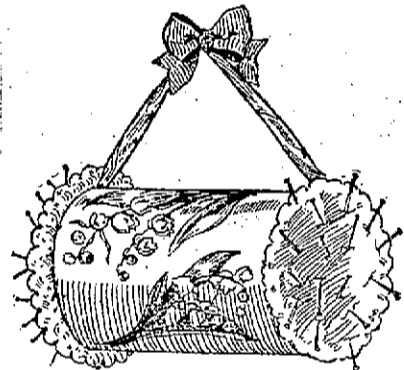

A distinction should be made between the waxen, half ripe potato of early summer and the fully ripe, fresh tuber, which is a potato in perfection. Half ripe potatoes are never wholesome, though the Germans prefer these immature vegetables for their favorite salad.

It is a mistake to use half ripe potatoes or to use cold potatoes when freshly cooked potatoes can be obtained. The best potato salad can hardly be recommended on the score of wholesomeness, yet it should be remembered that the condiments used in its preparation assist digestion, and that a potato salad is therefore far more digestible than a half ripe, waxen boiled potato simply dressed in butter.

Parisian cooks seldom use cold potatoes. When they wish to cook potatoes rapidly for a garnish to meat for breakfast, they usually cut the raw potatoes in small ornamental shapes of uniform size, which will cook quickly. Sometimes the potatoes are cut into julienne shaped pieces about the thickness of two matches and the length of a short parlor match. More often, however, they are shaped into small balls, or "pears," with scoops. A good steel potato scoop, cutting a ball of three-quarters of an inch in diameter, costs about 40 cents. It should have a small hole in the center of the bowl to admit air.

for each end are made of horsehair. The one for pins is covered with padded silk. That for hairpins has the center part covered with net or lace, the meshes of which the hairpins can easily penetrate. The holder is sachet scented by rolling up a teaspoonful of the powder in a bit of wadding and putting it in the cylinder.

Baby Feeding Bottles.

Those who believe that feeding bottles for babies are the result of modern civilization are out of date. The Greek nurses used to carry with them a sponge full of honey in a small pot to stop the children from crying, and in the British museum are two Greek vases, dating from 700 B. C., which are much like feeding bottles used by the Romans subsequently.
